

Beacon Of Hope

Caron Treatment Centers Fight
The Good Fight Armed With Family

YASMIN SORTE

“We help empower our clients to make better choices, find their strength and create the life that they want in recovery.”

Yasmin Sorte has literally turned her life inside out by turning others’ lives completely around. She began her career in the fashion world, where what mattered was what people looked like on the outside. Today, she focuses on the inner workings of people struggling with addiction.

Sorte has found her passion at Caron Treatment Centers as the senior director of development and community relations, responsible for increasing access to treatment through philanthropy. But, if you ask her, she’ll tell you she’s just part of a team that guides individuals toward finding their better selves.

“I am continually inspired by the passion and clinical instincts of the people at Caron. They are the best in the field,” says Sorte. “We help empower our clients to make better choices, find their strength and create the life that they want in recovery.”

The battle of addiction is waged on many fronts. Caron is leading the fight by combining the highest level of clinical expertise while aligning with other agencies and facilities across the nation, ensuring clients get the treatment that best meets their needs. By including the client’s family in the recovery process from the beginning, they build a strong foundation and another pillar of support.

“I’m proud to be part of an organization like Caron that looks at all angles and works with the client and family in a comprehensive and holistic way,” Sorte says.

Caron is renowned for providing evidence-based, customized treatment, but there is a misperception that they only treat people with financial means. Caron is a beacon of hope to all who struggle.

Sorte is on the frontlines, raising funds and networking to get those who need help into the right treatment programs. She manages endowment funds – built from the generous support of alumni, family and friends – that provide scholarships to help many without means access Caron’s exceptional treatment or find the best program for their needs.

“At the end of the day, we have a healthcare crisis in our country, and it’s our responsibility to find a solution, provide education and create access so that those who need help can get it,” she says.

Caron Renaissance is located at 7789 N.W. Beacon Square Blvd., Boca Raton.
For more information, call 561-241-7977 or visit caron.org/renaissance.